Nor shall they be liable for any such damages including, but not limited to, reliance by a member or visitor on any information obtained via the web site; or that result from mistakes, omissions, interruptions, deletion of files, viruses, errors, defects, or any failure of performance, communications failure, theft, destruction or unauthorized access. States or Countries which do not allow some or all of the above limitations of liability, liability shall be limited to the greatest extent allowed by law.

Potential side effect of Laser treatment include but are not limited to the following:

- Short term side effects such as reddening and mild burning are normal and may last up to three hours.
- There is a slight possibility of developing a crust or a blister on the treated region. This is superficial, does not result in scarring if not subject to further trauma, and is treated like sunburn or any other blister.

- The treated areas usually heal without any pigment changes, however, there is a slight possibility that there will be darker(hyperpigmented) or lighter(hypopigmented) areas occurring on the skin. These are temporary and will normalise over several months. Sun exposure after the treatment should be avoided as this may intensify hyperpigmentation. It is rare that a change is permanent.

- Scarring is very rare, and can generally be avoided by following the treatment instructions.
-Excessive swelling may occur immediately after treatment, especially if the face has been treated. This is temporary and not harmful. Ice packs may reduce the swelling.

By accessing this website and purchasing any products from it, the user agrees to take all responsibility and liability to the potential side effects of using laser treatment and the user agrees not hold Liquid Digital Solutions liable for any side effects of using the product. The user agrees to take all responsibility and liability for studying the understanding the process of laser treatment and any potential side effects and dangers associated with it and will not hold Liquid Digital Solutions Liable under any circumstances.
